Negotiate to Win – Online & Onscreen

As in many areas of life, it is the preparation in advance that really brings results. This webinar will provide you with some tools and techniques for both the on screen/online negotiation and the preparation, so your meetings, calls or messages become more effective. A structured approach will build confidence and highlight specific elements for improvement.

Much will depend upon your mindset: you can influence yourself even if you cannot always influence someone else in the way you might like to. Flexibility can be planned in advance.

Effective negotiators develop habits and traits which become seemingly automatic, but which come down to a small range of behaviours and skills. This webinar we help you improve your habits and attitude to identify approaches enabling a more flexible yet still professional approach.

This is a practical and interactive webinar, led by an expert in communication. Come prepared not just to listen, but question, contribute and learn.
